Substitutions
There were two substitutes this evening.
President Burke presented Randolph Lumm with a plaque for his year of service as Board President for the calendar year 2011. He thanked him for service and leadership to the Maricopa Organization and for mentoring him since came on board as member in 2010.

As per Governing Board tradition, newly-elected President Burke provided the following comments pertaining to his expectations for the coming year:

President’s Address - 2012

In 1983, The National Commission on Excellence in Education presented a report on education in American public schools titled “A Nation at Risk.” In the report, the Commission stated that “…the educational foundations of our society are presently being eroded by a rising tide of mediocrity that threatens our very future as a Nation and a people.”

Further, the report stated this indictment of the educational system: “If an unfriendly foreign power had attempted to impose on America the mediocre educational performance that exists today, we might well have viewed it as an act of war. As it stands, we have allowed this to happen to ourselves.”

In April, 2013, we will look back on three decades of educational planning to improve America’s schools. Despite the implementation of myriad programs, we still read reports of American students’ falling behind other countries in math and science, reports of significant high school dropouts, reports of students’ testing into developmental courses when they enter college, and reports of employer criticisms of college graduates’ skill levels.

In Arizona, approximately 24 of every 100 high school students drop out before graduation. Of the 76 graduates, approximately 38 go to college; and among the students who come to the Maricopa colleges, approximately 22 test into developmental math; approximately 15 test into developmental reading; and approximately 13 test into developmental English.

Since 2008, budgets for public school and higher education have decreased, despite a growing number of students. At the same time, both legislators and citizens are demanding greater accountability from teachers and schools to effect student success; and President Obama has called for an increase in the number of citizens with baccalaureate degrees to meet the employment needs of new jobs that require advanced education.

Also, in June 2011, President Obama announced a major initiative to dramatically enhance and improve industry partnerships with community colleges and build a nation-wide network to maximize workforce development strategies, job training programs, and job placements. To achieve this goal, the community colleges will need to increase the number of certificates, associate degrees, and transfers to universities or four year colleges.
The Maricopa Community College District has responded to the national goal of increasing the number of graduates from our colleges by fifty percent in this decade. In subsequent years, the administration will provide annual metrics reports to reflect achievement toward that outcome.

The Board recognizes that our colleges face significant challenges this decade, but we are confident that administration, faculty, and staff have the ability to reach this goal. The Maricopa Community College District has a history of improving curriculum, educational programs, student services, and community involvement. Innovation is part of our chemistry, and numerous programs initiated at the colleges and in the District Office have exemplary success.

Recently, our Chancellor, Dr. Rufus Glasper, has introduced literature about disruptive innovation and disruptive governance to the Chancellor’s Executive Council and the Governing Board, and those concepts will become a continuing discussion in the Maricopa District. Disruptive Innovation is an approach that allows colleges and universities to focus on the best ways to use people, technology, and processes to enhance delivery and add value to its services.

The literature on disruptive innovation does not recommend doing away with all programs currently in place, but application of disruptive innovations calls for implementing new methods to serve students, as opposed to refining a current system. In addition, the literature emphasizes a collaboration of efforts by faculty, administration, and staff as opposed to imposing change on educational practices.

Glibly stated, disruptive innovation leads to activities that allow us to serve more students, to improve quality, and to reduce costs.

Disruptive governance, on the other hand, reflects a change of perspective by Board members. We are committed to Policy Governance, which leads us to establish outcomes and to evaluate achievement of outcomes. Disruptive governance does not conflict with Policy Governance; rather, the concept provides for greater discussion among Board members, the Chancellor, and the colleges regarding outcomes.

Disruptive governance can be divided into two broad practices: creating more time for innovative and exceptional governance work; and using the “found” time to change existing practices, structures and culture to promote more critical governance thinking and to create new shared mental models of governing and innovation.

As we develop greater awareness of disruptive innovation and disruptive governance, ideas will emerge about the most pressing needs of the Maricopa District as previously identified and prioritized by the Governing Board. However, I ask the Board and the Chancellor to consider an area of research and innovation relating to students in developmental math, reading, and English courses.

The number of students who test into developmental courses is a national concern, and the Board recognizes that Maricopa faculty and administrators are working diligently to address student needs and that they have developed exceptional programs at campuses, and that they share information at the annual Student Success Conference. Nonetheless, the District still has work to do to increase the number of students who must develop skills to perform effectively in 100-level courses.

Perhaps we could develop strategies of disruptive innovation to focus on collaborative programs to serve more students, to improve quality, and to reduce costs.

In our discussions of disruptive innovation and disruptive governance, we need time to understand the concepts and to initiate opportunities for staff, administration, and faculty to think creatively and collaboratively to help students achieve success.

We have been innovative for decades. However, current needs require greater innovation. The Board has confidence that employees and students will build on past successes to create more effective educational programs and processes in this decade, and we are eager to observe these innovations evolve.

Board Member Reports
Dr. Don Campbell: No specific report, however, wanted to comment on President Burke’s presidential message. He stated there was one critical area in the elementary and high school age groups. He personally was involved in a mentoring program at the Roosevelt School District trying to get them parents involved in working with their kids. He emphasized the importance of parents’ involvement with their children.

Debra Pearson: Expressed appreciation to Chancellor Glasper and everyone who participated in the January 10 Governing Board Retreat on Disruptive Innovation. She was excited about the concept. She also thanked Dr. Pan for the use of the Red Mountain Campus which provided a very peaceful place to hold this retreat, although it was quite a distance to travel to.

Randolph Lumm: Offered his congratulations to Doyle Burke on his election as Board President and Dana Saar as Board Secretary. He stated that they both bring a wealth of experience to their positions as Board Officers, as well as Board Members.

Doyle Burke: Reported that during their first year as board members both he and Mr. Saar has visited with all members of CEC and had recently started their second phase of getting further acquainted with the work of the Vice Chancellors. He stated that he and Mr. Saar had recently attended the East Valley Partnership Breakfast co-hosted by Mesa Community College. In addition, he was able to attend the recent MLK Breakfast sponsored by the City of Phoenix where fellow board member Dr. Don Campbell had been honored. At lunch that same day, fellow board member Randolph Lumm was honored by the City of Glendale by being awarded the Promoting Inclusiveness Award.

CHANCELLOR’S REPORT

Chancellor Glasper followed up on President Burke’s comments by congratulating Dr. Campbell and Mr. Lumm on the recent honors by the City of Phoenix and City of Glendale. He stated that it was outstanding that two board members had been honored. In addition, two other Maricopa employees/retirees had been recognized for their efforts – Will Counts from GWC and Carnella Hardin from GCC. He echoed Mr. Burke’s comments congratulating the Maricopa board members and staff who had been honored at the MLK events. He also commented that the recent Governing Board Retreat had been outstanding in that it placed the framework on the table on how to proceed on change and how we utilize our people, as well as how technology can help us to advance. Disruptive Governance defines how we do business and conduct meetings. If we restructure slightly we might be able to have dialogues. We need to have more dialogue so we can understand change. At a recent meeting he attended he learned how higher education is having to maximize their resources and how CEO’s are impacted. They were asked what the consequences of a 5% cut would be. They talked about collective strategies for both public and private and pushing to require a conversation to a broader with public and K-12 partners. Lastly, the Chancellor indicated that a final report of the 21st Century Maricopa had been distributed. He reported that out of 93 recommendations, 77 were completed. 16 recommendations did not warrant consideration by this District. They will be looking at other recommendations which will be added to the Seamless Student Experience (SSE). He thanked the Governing Board for their support and asked that they embrace SSE. He encouraged a conversation about what it means to change as we move through change and achieve the goals of SSE.

SECRETARY’S REPORT

There was no report.

STUDENT LIFE REPORTS

Mike Greene reported that the annual Student Life Learning Outside the Classroom Retreat had been held September 9-11 in Prescott. This year there were 175 attendees from 11 colleges in Arizona, including Central Arizona and Coconino. Students were exposed to many networking and teambuilding activities. He then introduced Kolton Orcutt, President of the CGCC Psychology who provided report on speakers and workshops the club’s membership had participated in during the Fall semester, which included an item drive and tour for/or the Arizona State Hospital, a holiday family adoption, and the following speakers:

- Dr. Steven Fox – Dream Interpretation
- Power Paws
- Erica Jowett, Behavior Analysis at BISTA Center
- Jan Baker, Relaxation Techniques

Plans for the Spring include a sign-up booth, affiliation with the PsiBeta Chapter, and an SIRRI presentation.

FACULTY REPORT

Eddie Genna, President of the Faculty Association, reported on the 2011 expenditures of the Faculty Foundation which had a brisk business throughout the year. The money for this foundation goes to students who have a financial need including rent, groceries, bus tickets, shelter, replacement of stolen textbooks. The foundation doubled their funds ($18,000) last semester and exhausted them by October. This semester they have already helped six students. He invited Board Members and CEC to participate in their upcoming Bowl-a-thon scheduled to be held Friday, April 27. Mrs. Pearson asked how students are informed about these funds and was informed that student advisors, counselors, and faculty know about this.

EMPLOYEE GROUP REPORTS

Phil Jalowiec, President of the Adjunct Faculty Association, provided the following comments:

“There are a number of initiatives in which the Adjunct Faculty Employee Group is engaged in this semester and I would like to highlight some of those. I would like to begin by highlighting the completion of one of the previously reported initiatives: The Adjunct Faculty Employee Handbook.”
We are making progress on our joint efforts with Residential Faculty on Faculty Engagement in Student Success initiatives.

Joint Faculty Student Success Engagement

Initial Areas Being Examined

- Faculty Student Survey Instrument
  - Inform The Instructor
  - Stimulate Thought, Dialog And Focus In The Student About Their Direction And Progress
- Faculty Professional Development
  - Utilization of Faculty Tools
  - Knowledge of Student Success Resources
- Sharing Student Success Practices
  - Testimonials
  - Discussing and Refining Practices

We are also pursuing Adjunct Faculty Recognition for both longevity and performance. We have been recognizing Adjunct Faculty for 15 or more years of service for 8 years at the District level. We are seeking to expand that recognition this year to those who have served the District for 5 and 10 years. We also want to include District employees who serve in other capacities who also serve as Adjunct Faculty because they have been previously excluded.

Adjunct Faculty Service Recognition
We continue to refine a set of criteria for recognizing Adjunct Faculty as outstanding. We will be using some novel approaches to promoting awareness of these criteria and encourage Adjunct Faculty to pursue improvement as well as recognition. We hope to encourage the other colleges in the District to expand their recognition of Adjunct Faculty to Rio Salado’s level who last September recognized 30 Adjunct Faculty for their outstanding contribution to Rio Salado’s success.

Outstanding Adjunct Faculty Recognition

- Refining and Publicizing Outstanding Criteria
  - Pedagogy
  - Assessment
  - Enrichment
  - Development
  - Professionalism

- Promote Broader Recognition
- Facilitate Participation and Process

We currently offer many excellent professional development events through MCLI, EOLT and the Centers for Teaching and Learning at each college. Providing effective access to the content of these events to 6,000+ Adjunct Faculty has been a key interest for our employee group. While event attendance would be ideal, resource and time limitations make that impossible. A subcommittee of the District Faculty Development Coordinators is facilitating the development of resources and modules that would provide 24/7 access to key content.

Vice Chancellor Reports

College Reports
There were no reports.

AADGB Report
Governing Board President Doyle Burke reported the AADGB members had met on January 19 and then met with college presidents, followed by a trip to the State Capitol to meet with members of the legislature.

ASBA Report
Governing Board Secretary Dana Saar reported that the Arizona School Board Association continues to communicate with legislators on issues affecting the community colleges and K-12 education.

Legislative Update
Patricia Hill, Director of State and Local Government, provided the following comments:
“President Burke, Members of the Board, Chancellor Glasper, Members of CEC, and all others present:

I am here this evening to provide you with a brief legislative update. As you know, the Legislature convened the 50th Legislature, Second Regular Session on January 9. Today is the 16th day of the session. Just a reminder, the deadline for the submission of House Bills is February 6 and the deadline for the submission of Senate Bills is January 30th, so by the 6th, we should have a sense of the universe of issues that will be before the Legislature this session.

In terms of legislation, to date, 1030 legislative proposals have been posted compared to 853 legislative proposals that had been posted at this same time last year. We typically see about 1200 bills introduced during the regular session, with about 350 actually becoming law. This session, the number of bills introduced may be higher than what we would usually expect. Some bills, such as the legislation that would allow guns on campuses, directly affect community colleges. Other bills that affect community colleges affect a variety of political subdivisions, such as legislation related to tort reform, transparency or open meeting laws. Our Legislative Team works closely with our staff, other community college staff and variety of stakeholders to assess the impacts of legislative proposals on our operations.

We will include a summary of key legislative issues in your next board packet. I would be happy to try to answer any questions that you may have.”
